And your opinions in that case were -- were they blaming the plaintiff for the incident? (MR. GRINNAN objection: object to the form, foundation.)

Answer (BENJAMIN GIBSON):

I don't think it was necessarily blaming the plaintiff in that case. I think it was noting that Energy Transfer was not involved in that work. They hired that contractor. They -- this guy was the foreman and had chose the means and method, that was more the theme in that case for -- given the nuances of that specific matter.

Contractor Blame Shift

Client Value: 7/10 · Opposition Value: 5/10

Summary

Ms. Easterling's question forced Gibson to clarify that the plaintiff was not being blamed, and he shifted the blame to the contractor and foreman. This exchange gives the prosecution a ready-made narrative that Shell's safety lapses were not the sole cause of the incident and that the contractor's negligence is a key factor. The witness's statements also reinforce that Shell was not supervising Energy Transfer, supporting a claim of inadequate oversight. The pair is a valuable asset for framing the defendants' liability while preempting a plaintiff negligence argument.
