Question (MS. EASTERLING):

And your opinions in that case were -- were they blaming the plaintiff for the incident? (MR. GRINNAN objection: object to the form, foundation.)

Answer (BENJAMIN GIBSON):

I don't think it was necessarily blaming the plaintiff in that case. I think it was noting that Energy Transfer was not involved in that work. They hired that contractor. They -- this guy was the foreman and had chose the means and method, that was more the theme in that case for -- given the nuances of that specific matter.

Summary

Gibson's testimony in this pair is a textbook example of blame deflection: he shifts responsibility from the plaintiff to the foreman/contractor while admitting a lack of concrete evidence. The defense can use this to undermine the plaintiff's expert narrative and highlight the defendants' adherence to safety protocols. However, the testimony is only moderately reliable, qualified, and contestable, so the defense must be ready to challenge its admissibility and credibility. Overall, the exchange offers a solid, but not decisive, asset for the defense's strategy.

Use This

[HIGH] Call 1 · blame_structure

Gibson explicitly deflects blame to the foreman, directly supporting the defense's position that the defendants followed proper safety practices.

[MEDIUM] Call 4 · contestability

The procedural objection by Mr. Grinnan indicates the testimony is contestable, giving the defense a foothold to question admissibility and reliability.

[MEDIUM] Call 4 · epistemic_reliability

The conditional reliability and qualifiers in Gibson's statements weaken his testimony, providing a basis for the defense to challenge its weight.

Watch This

[MEDIUM] Call 2 · pressure_configuration

Prepare to counter Ms. Easterling's epistemic pressure by emphasizing Gibson's defensive posture and the lack of supporting evidence.

[MEDIUM] Call 4 · contestability

Anticipate the objection from Mr. Grinnan and be ready to argue the admissibility of Gibson's testimony based on its qualified nature.

[LOW] Call 3 · source_position

Note that Gibson is a plaintiff-side expert; this alone does not threaten the defense but should be acknowledged when assessing credibility.

Call Rank

- #1 · Call 1 — Deflection of blame is the most directly useful signal for the defense.
- #2 · Call 4 — Shows both the conditional reliability and contestability of Gibson's testimony.
- #3 · Call 5 — Highlights Gibson's defensive posture and framing bias.
- #4 · Call 2 — Indicates the examiner's pressure but is less critical than the deflection evidence.
- #5 · Call 3 — Provides context on source credibility but is less actionable.
- #6 · Call 6 — Pattern label is descriptive but offers minimal strategic insight.
